Table of Contents

Who should use a license?

- Do you want others to contribute?
- Do you want others to use and build on your work?
- Do you like open source?
- Do you want to define what can be done with your code?

Use A License!

What licenses do for you

- Define how others can use your code
- Tell other's what they need to do when re-using your code
- Absolve you of responsibility

On creation of a new Github repository, you are prompted to choose a license. For more information, Github provides the helpful site `http://choosealicense.com`

esoteric licenses

As with all things open source, there are esoteric options. Whether practical and extreme, or impractical and goofy, esoteric licenses exist. Examples include:

- wtfpl
- beerware
- fight club license

beerware

"THE BEER-WARE LICENSE" (Revision 42):
jphk@FreeBSD.ORG wrote this file. As long as you retain this notice you can do whatever you want with this stuff. If we meet some day, and you think this stuff is worth it, you can buy me a beer in return.
